

HASHIT

Run No: 1674

Hare: Taxi

Where: Pugsley Ave

When: 01 October 2007

A much smaller pack than we are used to of late turned up for the Labour Day run. However, Peno was back and some other sometimes hashers came out of the woodwork. We were quite eager to be off, so much so that we left without Doggy and the Brute, who had to try and catch up.

It was a balmy start to October with the scent of Riverina Bluebell heavy in the air, choking all of us who suffer from the dreaded hay fever. The hare sent us up the hill and around and around in circles until the pack was so spread out we could barely hear each other shout.

All the cul de sacs and lane ways in Estella started to look the same. We tried to stay true to the trail but it was hard to find across scrub in the dark so once we hit Pugsley again many gave up. A few dedicated athletes, forged on on and found On Home.

DHOTW went to the Librarian who likes to wear her sun glasses at night.

Hash Trash

A wife was making a breakfast of fried eggs for her husband.

Suddenly, her husband burst into the kitchen. 'Careful,' he said, 'CAREFUL! Put in some more butter! Oh my gosh! You're cooking too many at once. TOO MANY! Turn them! TURN THEM NOW! We need more butter. Oh my gosh! WHERE are we going to get MORE BUTTER? They're going to STICK! Careful. CAREFUL! I said be CAREFUL! You NEVER listen to me when you're cooking! Never! Turn them! Hurry up! Are you CRAZY? Have you LOST your mind? Don't forget to salt them. You know you always forget to salt them. Use the! salt. USE THE SALT! THE SALT!'

The wife stared at him. 'What in the world is wrong with you? You think I don't know how to fry a couple of eggs?'

The husband calmly replied, 'I just wanted to show you what it feels like when I'm driving.'

Fifty-one years ago, Herman James, a North Carolina mountain man, was drafted by the Army. On his first day in basic training, the Army issued him a comb. That afternoon the Army barber sheared off all his hair. On his second day, the Army issued Herman a toothbrush. That afternoon the Army dentist yanked seven of his teeth. On the third day, the Army issued him a jock strap. The Army has been looking for Herman for 51 years.

A woman came home, screeching her car into the driveway, and ran into the house. She slammed the door and shouted at the top of her lungs, 'Honey, pack your bags. I won the lottery!' The husband said, 'Oh my God! What should I pack, beach stuff or mountain stuff?'

'Doesn't matter,' she said. 'Just get out.'

One day, a man came home and was greeted by his wife dressed in a very Sexy nightie. 'Tie me up,' she purred, 'and you can do anything you want.'

So he tied her up and went golfing.

Burning chilli sparks terror fear

BBC News 24 - Wednesday, 3 October 2007

The dish uses extra-hot chillies which are deliberately burnt. A pot of burning chilli sparked fears of a biological terror attack in central London. Firefighters wearing protective breathing apparatus were called to D'Arbly Street, Soho, after reports of noxious smoke filling the air.

Police closed off three roads and evacuated homes following the alert. Specialist crews broke down the door to the Thai Cottage restaurant at 1900 BST on Monday where they discovered the source - a 9lb pot of chillies.

Nam Prik Pao recipe

Heat garlic and shallots in oil and remove to a bowl

Place red chillies in the pan with some oil and fry until they go dark in colour. Then set aside

Mix shrimp paste with the rest of the ingredients and pound in a mortar and pestle

Return the mixture to the heat until it becomes a thick dark coloured paste

The restaurant had been preparing Nam Prik Pao, a red-hot Thai dip which uses extra-hot chillies which are deliberately burnt. But the smell prompted several members of the public to call the emergency services. Alpaslan Duven, a Turkish journalist based in the restaurant's building, said: "I was sitting in the office when me and my chief start coughing and I said this was something really dodgy. "I looked out of the window and saw people rushing and then we heard the sirens."

Supranee Yodmuang, the restaurant supervisor, was above the restaurant when she received a phone call from her boss. "It was about 4pm when I saw the police who were closing off the roads but I didn't know why. "My boss rang me and said I had to get out of the building because of a chemical attack." She added: "Because we're Thai, we're used to the smell of chillies."

A Scotland Yard spokesman said: "The street was closed off for three hours while we were trying to discover the source of the odour."
